

Hawai'i

THE MAGAZINE FOR AAA HAWAI'I MEMBERS

WHAT'S COMING IN 2012

JANUARY/FEBRUARY

VOLUNTOURISM: Writer Joan Conrow explores the growing Island trend and shows how to get involved.

CANADA'S POTLACH HERITAGE: Eric Lucas tells the tale of how First Nations art and artifacts are returning to their origins in Western Canada.

VISITING SACRED SITES: Hawai'i resident Joan Conrow explains why it's important to tread lightly at important cultural grounds.

HOLOHOLO-DIAMOND HEAD: On a visit from the mainland, Robin Jones found plenty that she had been missing simply by running in the neighborhoods that surround the crater.

MARCH/APRIL

PROGRESSIVE DINING: Our food writers suggest itineraries for each island where you can walk to a different restaurant for each course.

BASEBALL IN HAWAI'I: Robin Jones explores the state's rich hardball history, from Little League champions to Gold Glove centerfielder Shane Victorino.

LANIKAI BEACH: A photo essay of the Kailua shoreline by former resident James Dannenberg.

HOLOHOLO-NIAULANI RAINFOREST: Hawai'i Island resident Bill Harby goes along for a weekly walk presented by the Volcano Art Center.

MAY/JUNE

HAWAI'I'S RAILROAD HISTORY: Cheryl Chee Tsutsumi finds that the Hawai'i Railroad Society has restored several miles of track and three diesel locomotives from its glorious past.

SURFING MUSEUMS: Joan Conrow visits three museums that pay tribute to the state's favorite recreation.

LEI SEASONS: Leis are essential parts of any celebration, so Jocelyn Fujii offers a guide the different flower seasons.

HOLOHOLO-MOLOKA'I PLUMERIAS: Nadine Nettman Semerau tours a Moloka'i farm that supplies the key lei flower and learns how to make floral necklaces.

JULY/AUGUST

NEW ZEALAND: AAA Hawai'i Editor in Chief Al Bonowitz explores the green, gourmet, and geothermal attractions in and around the capital city of Wellington.

GAS STATION FOOD: Maui-based Bonnie Friedman shows you the best local chow in the most unexpected places.

WAIKIKI FROM THE TOP: Writer Alex Salkever presents three high-level views that offer stunning and different perspectives of the city.

HOLOHOLO-FLUMIN' DA DITCH: Hawai'i Island resident Bill Harby takes a ride on the newly reopened Kohala Coast attraction.

SEPTEMBER/OCTOBER

PROTECTING THE LAND: A photo essay explores the important conservation work done by the Hawaiian Islands Land Trust and the Kaho'olawe Island Reserve Commission.

OLD THEATERS OF HAWAI'I: Writer Cheryl Chee Tsutsumi explores the history of several 1920s-era theaters around the Islands that are still in use.

MUSIC IS GOOD WITH JAKE SHIMABUKURO
Cheryl Chee Tsutsumi explores the internationally renowned 'ukulele virtuoso's homegrown charitable project.

HOLOHOLO-SLEEPING GIANT: Kaua'i resident Joan Conrow hikes up the noted landmark.

NOVEMBER/DECEMBER

NORTHERN ITALY'S CULINARY DELIGHTS: Writer Andrew McCarthy tucks into the Parma ham, cheese, and pasta that make Emilia Romagna a foodie's delight.

PACIFIC ROLLER DERBY: Does new mom Christine Thomas have what it takes to strap on skates alongside local practitioners of the revitalized 1950s sport?

FORGOTTEN LANDS: Alex Salkever covers some upland O'ahu state parks that are rarely crowded (until now), have great views, and aren't too far to drive.

HOLOHOLO-ANNA RANCH: Christine Thomas visits Hawai'i Island to tour this Kamuela landmark and shop at its hoppin' farmers market.
